Civil Defense Procedure For School Kids Explained

Present Civil Defense procedures in Torrance schools were explained to the Board of Education recently by Al Posner, assistant superintendent of schools. If an atomic attack or major disaster takes place during school hours, children will remain under the custody and jurisdiction of the schools until either civil or military defense gives the o.k. for children to be released, Posner pointed out. The following procedure will be followed for the present: If inside the school building the pupil should: 1. Drop to his knees with back to the windows; knees together; 2. Fold arms on the floor close to the knees; 3. Bury face in arms; close eyes tightly; 4. Stay there while counting to 100; 5. Listen for and follow the next instructions without question and immediately (this instruction may come from any adult and its nature will depend upon circumstances and the extent of damage to buildings. If outside the school building the pupil should: 1. If any protection is within a step or two, crouch or lie down behind building, yard bench, curb, or in gutter; 2. If in the open, drop to the ground, curl up with back to the blast; 3. Stay there while counting to 100; 4. Listen for and follow the next instructions without questions and immediately.
